LIST OF JOURNALS REGULARLY SEARCHED

This list of journals regularly searched by Psychological Abstracts now totals 545. Coverage categories are indicated by type face: bold face, journals received by the editorial office; roman, journals searched by the abstracter. In those cases where no abstracter is indicated, the journal is temporarily unassigned. The notation (BA) indicates biological journals of psychological interest covered by cooperative agreement with Biological Abstracts.

2 NEW TITLES IN AMERICAN LECTURES IN PSYCHOLOGY

Edited by

MOLLY HARROWER, Ph.D.

Research and Consulting Psychologist, New York
Professor of Research in Clinical Psychology in the Department of Psychiatry, Temple University School of Medicine

A FUNCTIONAL APPROACH TO TRAINING IN CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY: Via Study of a Mental Hospital by Abraham S. Luchins, Univ. of Miami. This book is a positive NO to the practice of turning the psychologist trainee loose in the hospital with instructions to "observe." Its broad orientation operates against freezing the psychologist in his traditional role of technician. A stimulating and different view of a training program for the clinical psychologist in a mental hospital. EMPHASIZES THE ROLE OF THE PSYCHOLOGIST AS A STUDENT OF BEHAVIOR AND SOCIAL PROGRESS. Doctor Luchins puts into focus ways to get acquainted with a mental hospital, not only inside but even outside the hospital walls. The trainee sees the whole hospital intimately before he ever takes the Rorschach cards out of the kit. Quoting a reader . . ."Luchins' program gives students a healthier respect for the kind of problems which nurses, aides, social workers, and psychologists have to face in a hospital. And once having realized this, and gotten to know these other hospital people, it would seem that test reports would contain less private jargon and more useful, shareable observations."

DRIVE STRUCTURE AND CRIMINALITY: Criminobiologic Investigations by Hans Walder, Attorney General, Zurich. Edited by Lipot Szondi and translated by Marvin W. Webb. By means of the most highly developed techniques of criminal investigation and personality exploration employed in Western Europe, the psychodynamics of criminality are pursued to their innermost recesses within the human psyche. The global personality of the offender is gleaned upon a longitudinal basis, chiefly through the application of the Szondi test, a technique favored by Continental jurists. The Szondi test is particularly instructive in portraying the unique constellations of drive traits and tendencies which are interrelated to the several types of offenses. It is clearly demonstrated that a given offender is capable of committing only certain categories of offenses and not others. This work fosters improved methods of crime detection. It seeks to illumine the more difficult but more significant areas of punishment, reformation, and crime prevention. Doctor Hans Walder meets in full measure the criterion that this comprehensive theory of criminogenics shall be presented by a criminologist of repute.
